Caherslee Area Plan

As stated in the September edition (Vol. 1 No. 6) it was proposed to the Mayor that there was an immediate need to begin the process of developing an area plan for the general Caherslee-Mounthawk areas. Caherslee Community News can reveal that as far back as 1996 the suggestion to plan development in our area was brought before the then UDC (Town Council). This did not happen. The results are that we have had and still have piecemeal development in our area. We have serious traffic congestion. We do not have adequate open spaces or amenity areas proportionate to the population in our area. Why has such a situation arisen – public representatives have not taken notice of the just needs and concerns of people in this area. There has not been any public representative living this area in many years, who has taken a proactive interest in our area. It is for these reasons that, those of us who are interested enough should be prepared to be proactive by lobbying effectively, with one voice, the appropriate authorities so that we can develop and enhance our community.

Golf Society

During the next meeting on the 22nd November 2005 the Golf Society for the residents of the area will be established. If you are interested please do attend this meeting in The Grand Hotel, Tralee at 8.30pm.

Update on 'Umbrella Group' – Area Council Meeting on 3rd October 2005

24 Interested Residents from our area, out of an estimated 2,500 population, attended this meeting in The Grand Hotel. Many issues of concern to all residents were discussed. The formation of a Council or representative body was postponed until the next meeting to allow more people the opportunity to voice their concerns and to become involved.

As has already been stated the purpose of this Council is to ensure that the quality of life and the environment in our area is maintained and improved where possible.

If current plans for development in our area go ahead then the likelihood of increased traffic congestion and the devaluing of property is very real.

This Council when formed will be in a position to represent all residents in our area and it will act proactively to ensure that the future development of our area will be positive for all.

It is important that as many people as possible living in our area get involved or at least attend the meetings. The Council will hold meetings for residents initially on three occasions annually unless there is a need to hold more meetings, depending on the needs at any one time. In order to ensure that this Community Council is representative of the whole area we appeal to all residents to make the effort to attend the next meeting – on Tuesday 22nd November 2005 The Grand Hotel, Denny Street, Tralee at 8.30pm

Traffic Problem – Our Problem!

In one of Oscar Wilde's top-drawer story one of the characters remarks that a colleague was one of those people who believe that if one says something often enough, eventually it will be true. There are fewer better truisms in the world of self-delusion! If I were to pick an issue where I think this truism is alive and well is in relation to traffic in Tralee and, more to the point, in Caherslee.

How often have we heard that traffic is such a huge problem in Tralee. 'The traffic is crazy', 'the roads are hopeless', 'the streets are badly designed', 'the weather causes more traffic', 'there should be more roundabouts'.

The real truth is of course that we ourselves are the problem. The streets and the roads are innocent old things really as is the weather. The real problem is that we are lazy, don't want to walk and are afraid of getting wet. We ourselves snarl up the roads with cars and don't obey the laws. The two thousand or so people living in Caherslee could walk down to town in 10 minutes at rush hour, have a chat and get to know each other – or even the next door neighbour, get exercise, lose a few pounds and get to work or school on time – and maybe enjoy the walk whatever the weather.

So get on your walking shoes, get on your bike, sell the car and stop the giving out about the traffic. What a lovely walk it is into town after all! (Name and address with Editor)

Newsletter Survey

We have distributed over 50 questionnaires to date. We intend to distribute at least 50 more questionnaires to ensure that we can get a better representation of the views of the residents of the whole area. Therefore, we will postpone any results, until this process is complete.

National Radon Forum

The 4th Irish National Radon Forum will be held in the Meadowlands Hotel, Tralee Co Kerry on the 14th November 2005.

The principal objective of the forum is to bring together people who have a role to play in raising public awareness of the risks of radon in Ireland and in reducing those risks.

Key participants are groups concerned with public health and the health and safety of workers, local authorities and employers particularly those in high radon areas as well as trade unions. The forum is also aimed at those companies involved in the radon protection industry such as radon remediation and testing. The forum is open to the public and attendance is free.

Exposure to radon gas in Ireland is linked to some 200 lung cancer deaths each year in Ireland. High radon levels have been found in all parts of the country however north Kerry seems particularly affected. It is for this reason that this year's forum is being held in Tralee.

Further details of information on the day's proceedings will follow in the coming weeks.

Traffic Survey No. 02

On Tuesday morning 13th September 2005 traffic survey No. 02 was conducted (08.10 – 09.20hrs.) in relation to traffic at Balloonagh Cross.

The total number of all types of vehicles, which arrived at Balloonagh Cross/Junction from the Caherslee direction was 796, in this time period. 206 vehicles turned right at the junction to proceed along Matt Talbot road.

191 vehicles proceeded straight along Pembroke Street. 399 vehicles turned left and proceeded along Austin Stacks Villas.

The average number of vehicles that passed through the traffic lights on green was 18.6 during the period of the survey.

Comment: The principal cause of traffic congestion in this area occurs from 08.40 to 09.00 due to the number of children who cross the road on entering Balloonagh Primary School.

Possible solutions: These include a timed pedestrian crossing at the school entrance, which would synchronise with the lights at the main junction and the possibility of using the school grounds for dropping off children or the use of the traffic light pedestrian crossing at the junction, only, for school children.

Children who need to cross the road could also use the traffic lights that already exist. This would require the extension of time allowed for pedestrians to cross and also the need for the school warden to be present at this location.

There is also an extensive area of land within the Balloonagh school complex that could be used to take traffic off the roads and allow for the safer movement of children. This land if developed could perhaps be used for parents, staff and even the general public.

Your Gardening

Courtesy: Liscahane Nursery, Ardfert

- continue cutting lawns where the weather permits
- lawns may still be treated for weeds where it is necessary
- trim hedges to keep them tidy as the winter approaches
- summer bedding plant displays that are past their best may be replaced by autumn bedding plants
- keep weeds under control to prevent them going to seed
- continue to feed houseplants
- now is the time to plant bulbs for spring colour. There are a wide range available:- daffodils, tulips, crocus, hyacinths, anemones, snowdrops and many more – these can be planted in the ground and/or in pots.

Historical Tralee

Tralee (Irish: Trá Lí) is the county town of County Kerry in Ireland. It is situated in the southwest corner of Ireland. The name Tralee comes from the Irish Trá Lí, or Trá Laoi, which means "strand of the Lee" (river), although some believe it comes from the Irish Trá Liath meaning "grey strand". The town is situated at the neck of the Dingle Peninsula.

Today, the town of Tralee and its immediate environs has a population of c.25,000 – about 20% of the 126,000 population total for Co. Kerry - this figure is very likely to increase to about 30,000 in 2007.

Tralee lies on the southwest coast of Ireland at the gateway to the Dingle, Fenit and Barrow Peninsulas; it is almost 800 years old. The town takes its name from the river Lee, which flows into Tralee Bay, and is the capital town and administrative centre of Co. Kerry, Ireland's premier tourism county. (Tra means strand.) The town grew up around the major Geraldine Castle of John Fitzthomas Fitzgerald from the 13th century onwards. During this century, the Earls of Desmond used the town as a base from which to build up the greatest Anglo Norman lordship in Munster. [There will be more Tralee history in later editions.]

Security in Your Home

With the advent of autumn/winter and the dark, dreary, wet and wild nights ahead it is necessary to start thinking of the precautions you will need to take to ensure your property and yourself are safe and secure.

Make sure your outside light fittings are functioning correctly (ask a trusted neighbour or relative to check these if necessary).

If you live alone, don't open your door to strangers after a particular time at night.

Have a spy hole fitted to your front door.

If you have a patio door – lock it at a particular time, at night, the earlier the better. Don't leave windows open when you are not at home.

Access to the rear of your property should be made difficult – i.e. gate, fence and/or wall.

Do not overload electric sockets. Always place a guard in front of an open fire when you are out of that room. Do not leave your car unlocked, even in your driveway. Report suspicious activity to the Gardai and to your neighbours – you will not be wasting their time – you will be preventing trouble for yourself and others. Check on elderly neighbours, who are living alone, regularly. If a relative or friend is calling to your home late at night insist that they ring you before hand – especially if you are living alone.

These are just some of the things you may need to think about – if you haven't done so already.

Ladies Walking

As the autumn and winter arrive with the darker evenings etc., I have been asked to convey the following message. Some ladies who enjoy a walk in the evenings are interested in forming – informally – a network whereby they can contact others to accompany them while out walking. There are many reasons why this is worthwhile, it provides some security, it makes walking more enjoyable, it makes it easier to arrange other activities and it encourages you to get out and exercise.

Land at the entrance to Carrageendaniel

We at Caherslee Community News have been informed that Tralee Town Council are actively working on a plan to develop 2 or 3 houses on this land in the near future. It is unclear, at the moment, whether these will be private houses. It is clear, however, that if and when this land is put up for sale that it will be sold at full market value. One advantage of such a proposal is that at least the area will be tidied-up and not remain in the neglected state it has been in for so long.

Caherslee Community News would suggest that interested residents should, as a group, arrange to meet officials. We would gladly facilitate this.

Scotia's Grave

The equinox moonlights the way in silver patches. The dogs forge ahead, sniffing the night air, oblivious of their final destination. To our right a stream gurgles and gushes accompanying us on a journey that was hers. Once upon a time.

Deeper into the catacomb of undergrowth we cross one bridge and then another. The moon buries herself in clouds, shrouding the landscape. In the space of a moment our world shrinks to the crunching of twigs underfoot and distant nocturnal sounds that fuel our imaginings.

"I knew we shouldn't have come in the dark," moans Rachael whose ghostly petulant face scans mine for guidance.

"It's better in the dark", I mumble as I take the lead. I want to tell her that only the night would release her secrets but the words implode in my mouth as I exhale.

Without warning the stream peters out at the foot of Scotia's resting place.

So this is it," says Rachael.

She sits down on the grave and hugs her knees to herself. I will her to stay silent.

According to a 600 BC legend, Scotia, wife of the former Milesius and mother of six sons, was killed in battle with the legendary Tuatha De Danaan on the nearby Slieve Mish mountain.

A single solitary grave from Pagan Ireland. Raw primitive beliefs fed by the purity of imagination, unfettered by later allegiance to a dead man on a cross. Scotia whose valour and courage matched the great godlike De Danans was laid to rest in a grave fit for a Queen.

Daughter of an Egyptian Pharaoh, hieroglyphics mark her mound like tomb. We lay on the grave my sister and I and soak up the ancient energy. Nebulous facts make for fiction and ignite our sense of wonder. Was she given gifts for her journey? Food perhaps, flowers, precious metals? Intuited by her primitive soul she would go to the great kingdom in the sky to meet with her beloved. I envy her certainty.

The legend of Scotia enlarged by time slowly becomes part of our consciousness. A woman following her inner laws to avenge the man she once loved, precious father of her sons. Sons who in time would avenge her death and become leaders of this Green Isle. Scotia now rests in peace, assured of her lineage, confident of her place in history.

At Rachael's instigation we take leave of the sacred site. On the nearby hills, lit by a tapestry of stars I see sheep kneeling, some genuflecting, their silent figures caught in this vortex of ancient energy. Do they perhaps sense the gossamer thin veil between this world and the next and are momentarily transfixed?

The name O 'Sullivan, my mother's maiden name is allegedly linked to the Milesians. Could it be I owe this life to Scotia's brave heart and scattered seeds? Or perhaps Myths born of magic are embroidered by later generations and the truth, whatever it may be, is still waiting out there. (by Martha Brassil)

Preparing to Study: A Good Study Place

You need a good study place to be prepared to study. You should be able to answer YES to all of the following questions:

1. Is my Study Place available to me whenever I need it?

Your Study Place does you little good if you cannot use it when you need it. If you are using a Study Place that you must share with others for any reason, work out a schedule so that you know when you can use it.

2. Is my Study Place free from interruptions?

It is important to have uninterrupted study time. You may have to hang a DO NOT DISTURB sign on the door or take the phone off the hook.

3. Is my Study Place free from distractions?

Research shows that most students study best in a quiet environment. If you find that playing a stereo or TV improves your mood, keep the volume low.

4. Does my Study Place contain all the study materials I need?

Be sure your Study Place includes reference sources and supplies such as pens and pencils, paper, ruler, calculator, and whatever else you might need. If you use a computer for your schoolwork, it should be in your Study Place.

5. Does my Study Space contain a large enough desk or table?

While working on an assignment or studying for a test, use a desk or table that is large enough to hold everything you need. Allow enough room for writing and try to avoid clutter.

6. Does my Study Place have enough storage space?

You need enough room to store your study materials. Be sure you have enough storage space to allow you to keep your desktop or other work surface clear of unnecessary materials that can get in the way.

7. Does my Study Place have a comfortable chair?

A chair that is not comfortable can cause discomfort or pain that will interfere with your studying. A chair that is too comfortable might make you sleepy. Select a chair in which you can sit for long periods while maintaining your attention.

8. Does my Study Place have enough light?

The amount of light you need depends on what you are doing. The important thing is that you can clearly see what you need to see without any strain or discomfort.

9. Does my Study Place have a comfortable temperature?

If your Study Place is too warm, you might become sleepy. If it is too cold, your thinking may slow down and become unclear. Select a temperature at which your mind and body function best.

Having a good Study Place is important for good studying

More study tips in later editions.

'Boy Racers'

It has come to our attention that these 'boy racers' have and are a cause of concern in some areas locally. The activities of most of these individuals, once known as 'joy-riders' except that they tend to own the cars these days (!), should not be tolerated. They tend to operate late at night and as such are a nuisance. Elderly people and very young children are most vulnerable to the noise they create. It is not only the unnecessary noise levels; it is also that they intimidate other road users. Report them to the Gardai – get the registration number and or make and colour of their cars. If nothing is done then they will assume that they are being tolerated and will continue to create this nuisance. Contact this newsletter and we will make the appropriate complaint to the Gardai.

Rogue Traders

Recently I encountered some young men offering to clean windows. When asked for ID or 'phone numbers they became uneasy. Advice to residents when encountering these type of people is simple. Ask for ID and contact number preferably these details should be on a business card. Unless you are entirely satisfied with their identity or bona fides do not entertain them. I would suggest that they may be circulating the area 'casing out' property, to return later. We are not entering a time of the year when the evenings will become dark earlier and therefore allowing for 'the cover of darkness'. Do inform your neighbours if these people call on you. Do contact us at Caherslee Community News and we will inform other residents.

Broadband Internet Access

OECD Broadband Report - Ireland 27 Out of 30 for Value

eircom offer a download connection of 1mb and upload connection of 128k, as their basis package. This is very much less than is available in most other developed countries.

Consumer Report Shows Ireland One of the Most Expensive Countries in the World for Basic Broadband Services.

Internet consumer group Ireland Offline this morning published a new detailed broadband pricing report comparing Ireland to the 29 other OECD countries. Results of the report show that Ireland comes 27th out of 30 for value for money.

Ireland Offline Chairman Damien Mulley said "This report is the clearest evidence yet as to the state of broadband in Ireland. No talking up, side-stepping, or clever marketing can distract from the evidence: 26 other countries in the league of 30 score better for value for money."

Adding to Mulley's comments, Ireland Offline spokesman Aidan Whyte stated, "When you factor in the cost of Irish line rental, the most expensive in Europe at least euro24 per month], consumers in Ireland pay out substantially more for a service that is, in most cases, significantly inferior to those available in other developed countries."

He added, "High prices and below average broadband packages are symptomatic of poor competition in broadband markets. While eircom retain a stranglehold on the market via their wholesale bitstream products, they have no incentive to improve the situation. This is enhanced by their continued policy of frustrating the Local Loop Unbundling process. Recent attempts by ComReg to fix the LLU process ran into a brick wall when eircom once again brought them to the High court in yet another attempt to sustain their wholesale monopoly." If you cannot access the internet using broadband technology then, in 2005, you are out-dated. Working from home becomes a reality with broadband access. Competitiveness in global markets becomes a reality too. Many residents of our area cannot access broadband internet access through their 'phone line yet. This further proves how government is failing to live up to its promises especially, in the west of Ireland.
